DAINTY NEW TABLE SERVICE IN GLASSWARE

In Summertime the Way in Which a Meal Is Served Counts as Much as the Way in Which It Is Cooked.

she is a wise housewife who makes a with nickel brackets rising from it, each study of having her table present a cool, of which terminates in a ring socket.

study of having her table present a cool, fresh appearance. Spotless, stiff linen is, of course, the first step toward this end, and clean table cloth and napkins should be supplied never less than twice a week and in most cases every two days.

The second step—and this has less consideration from the average housewife—is the use of glassware for the service of the various courses. Summer hangings and summer furniture have for many years helped to give a seasonable atmosphere to a house in hot weather, but summer tableware has not until this year become a vogue, and it is in different varieties of glassware that it weather, but summer tableware has not until this year become a vogue, and it is in different varieties of glassware that it finds happiest expression.

For general use cut glass is not practical, so it is the heavier, less expensive crystal dishes which are used to replace as far as possible the service of china or porcelain. The former are made doubly serviceable by rims or standards of brightest nickel.

Salad bowls, trays and entree dishes of every sort and description offer new temptations to the woman shopper who takes up this recent fad. If she have an eye for novelties, she will find two distinctly new dishes, one of which is

To Protect S'ockings.

In order to hold the stockings in shape and in place it has always been necessary to have them caught up well at threads because of the strain, and the hose was then practically ruined, for it was a matter of but a short time after one break occurred before there were several other "runs." This could not be avoided even with the heavier lisle thread and cotton weaves and in desperation women who have a fad for wearing costly hosiery sought ways to remedy the evil.

fully two pieces of a stout ribbon about two inches square to the hem of each of my stockings, one on either side, that the strain is no longer on the hose but on the ribbon into which I fasten the clasps on the supporters. And the beauty of this device is that I can draw them up as tight as I wish and feel perfectly safe the stockings will be free from "runs" or a tear when I take them off. With this plan working I find that now the only piaces I wear out the sheerest of my hosiery are in the feet. "There is another plan that is quite as effective, though I think it is less decorative than the ribbon, for with the latter it is always easy enough to match the exact shade of the stockings while in using tapes frequently they cannot be bought in a color that correspond. When the latter are put on they are made into loops, fastened to the hem of the stockings one on either side of the leg: and through these ribbons from the elastics are tied. I think this last scheme is less practical than the first one, though it prevents any tearing or "runs," because the supporters or gar-"runs," because the supporters or gar-ters have to be changed, the clasps taken off and ribbons or elastic fixed so that they can be tied into the loops."

and imagine that you are indispensable.

No one is indispensable, so you can't afford to do anything but your best.

No matter how small the undertaking, do it as well as you can.

Don't get into the way of thinking—"Oh, this is so small and unimportant that it makes no difference how I do it!" If you are not reliable in small things, you can't be trusted with big things.

Don't be afraid of doing a little bit more than you are actually called upon to do.

more than you are actually called upon to do.

It is through seizing every opportunity that you will reach higher things.

Be cheerful over your work if you have to earn your living, you might just as well be happy as "grumpy" over it.

Put your whole heart and soul into doing your work well, and treat all with whom you come in contact courteously.

During business hours attend strictly to the work you have in hand. After hours you can enjoy yourself with a clear sense of duty done.

Don't talk to outsiders about what goes on in the office.

You are in honor bound to look on your employers' business as something to be kept absolutely secret by you.

There are two things for a business woman to bear in mind during business hours—her duty toward her employer and her self-respect.

For many reasons the "touch of black" in light gowns has been more or less in favor; some summers nothing is considered smart without it, and this year again it is very much in evidence. It requires great cleverness in the handling, if a hard or spotty effect is to be avoided, and very often the artistic beauty of the whole is sacrificed to to be avoided, and very often the artistic beauty of the whole is sacrificed to the demand for smartness. But the teuch of black can be varied by a touch of color-dark color, of courseand, says an artistic little woman, "if judiciously employed, this comes as a welcome relief. Have you ever tried the effect of a note of dark green, or of purple; for instance, the former to adorn, let us say, a light, putty-colored frock, or a stone-gray, the latter an extu, a pale pink, blue, deep cream, or grap of a less yellowish tone? Dark brown again (though I object to the obvious alliance of this color with being or champagne), or, smartest of all, if very carefully utilized, elephant gray."

One exceedingly simple remedy that has been handed down for generations, and one that has been found most effective in producing sleep, is to lie perfectly still in bed, close the lids, then raise the eyes as high as possible, still keeping the lids closed. interesting work to get up an appetizing luncheon for just yourselves, and you "get along" with a hasty luncheon of whatever happens to be around.

Naturally, you don't eat a great deal-nothing is particularly appetizing; but before long you sink into the habit of not bothering to stop for luncheon, and perhaps borther less and less for breakfast, with the result that you run down in health, perhaps not dangerously so, but at least perceptibly so.

This is particularly to be avoided if you are a brain worker, yet it is often brain workers who fall into just such errors.

Thinking gradually becomes impossible, and the patient gradually slinks into a deep dreamless slumber. One woman found great relief in this grovess even after she had had recourse. Light Housekeeping.

With all the many words that are attered every day in praise of light housekeeping, the ready-to-eat-and-serve things in its favor, there are certain disadvantages which are not always taken into consideration because you are a young lady.

Don't expect to be treated as if you were in society. You are probably doing the work that was done formerly by a man, and if in small ways you are not considered as much as you are at home, remember that you are in business.

Don't complain constantly about your work, and imagine that you are indicated any one.

A diamond necklace of surpassin beauty is formed of diamond clusters of good sizes, each with a large centra stone, from which depend large diamonds, with little space between them Pear-shaped diamonds fringe a costly necklace, in which a chain of large diamonds extends across the front. Parasol handles and handles of the fashionable sun umbrellas take on some odd and interesting shapes in carved wood.

Some very rich silk and lace covered parasois have square cut club handles that fold—a convenience often to be desired in this important article.

Sets composed of a handsome scarf pin with sleeve links to match come in little silk-lined cases and are most attractive. Oblong stones of green or ruby are shown framed in diamonds.

A diamond scarf pin has the head in the form of a circle of diamonds, with a pearl set free on the pin in the center of the circle with a space around it.

Very handsome is a diamond pendant forming a brooch, with platinum chains depending, that are finished with diamond leaves instead of drop stones. Handsome lemonade pitchers of cut glass come in conjunction with silver, by way of embellishment, which also adds an appreciable air of richness and solidity. In some the entire top and handle are of silver, with cut glass bowl and base, or the bowl and handle and top may be of the glass on a silver stand.
